Synod on Synodality Regional Synthesis as on the USCCB website (the following is directly from the website)

Called to be a Listening Church Synthesis of the Reports of the Dioceses of USCCB Region VIII

Overview Region VIII consists of ten dioceses across three states: the Archdiocese of Saint Paul and Minneapolis and the Dioceses of Crookston, Duluth, New Ulm, Saint Cloud and Winona/Rochester in Minnesota; the Dioceses of Bismarck and Fargo in North Dakota; and the Dioceses of Rapid City and Sioux Falls in South Dakota. The Region has recently undergone a substantial leadership change: since 2020, new bishops have been named and/or installed for six of the ten circumscriptions and a seventh has been anticipating a transition for nearly three years.

The ten dioceses are quite diverse in terms of geography, demographics and cultures. The Diocese of Crookston and the Diocese of New Ulm, for example, are quite rural with populations of less than 8,000 people and 12,000 respectively in their See Cities. The Dioceses in North and South Dakota, in contrast, have urban centers as their See Cities but nonetheless have significant rural areas with extremely low population density, including reservations with communities of Native Americans. The Archdiocese of Saint Paul and Minneapolis, and to a somewhat lesser degree the Dioceses of Winona-Rochester, Saint Cloud and Duluth, have racially and ethnically diverse urban areas and suburban communities as well as the small towns populated by families who have been farming the same land for generations. Politically, North Dakota and South Dakota are solidly red, while Minnesota is often described as purple, with its urban areas voting solidly Democrat and its rural counties voting solidly Republican. Yet, despite the many differences, the responses to the synodal process were similar.

Those who participated in the synod events seemed to be grateful for the opportunity to provide input. There appeared a genuine desire to assist Bishop of Rome as he guides the universal Church, as well as a recognition that everyone – clergy, lay, and consecrated – has an important role in the Church. Additionally, there was unity among the participants in a shared hope to see the Church strengthened. Finally, each diocese saw the synodal process as being helpful in furthering existing diocesan goals, such as assisting in pastoral planning initiatives which had already begun, or even laying a foundation for a future synodal event on the diocesan level...

I recommend that you continue reading this on the USCCB Website. I will continue to update as major milestones happen.

Blessings,

frjoe

Second Collection

There will be a second collection next weekend (Oct. 29/30) for those affected by the hurricane in Florida. If you are writing a check, please make it out to the parish and one check will be sent from Christ Church Newman Center. Thank you for your generosity!

WELCOME

We welcome to our Christ Church Newman Center staff Kevin LaNave! Kevin is our new Peace and Social Justice Coordinator. There will be coffee and rolls after Mass so please stop by and extend a warm Newman Center welcome!

"I am a longtime resident of St Cloud. Throughout my professional career, I have been engaged in peace and social justice education, in both faith-based and secular environments, in school- and community-based settings, on a wide range of issues. I am excited for this opportunity to support and collaborate with Newman Center members in exploring and acting upon the Gospel call to peace and justice." - Kevin

We also welcome to staff, Mike Spaniol. Mike will be helping Tom and Gerry with maintenance at the Newman Center in addition to his current duties at Holy Spirit. Please take a moment when you can to thank all of these wonderful people for doing what they do to keep Newman in tip-top shape!
